

CONTENTS

List of figures x
About the author xi
About the consultant editor xii
Foreword xiii
Preface xiv

PART ONE What lies beneath 1

---

- 01 Before we begin: New profession... or one of the oldest? 3
- Public relations ethics: oxymoron? 4
  - A tarnished history 5
  - Defining our terms 7
  - A profession or professionalism? 9
  - Aspiring to professionalism 11
  - Measuring your professionalism quotient 11
- 02 Lies, truth and honesty: Their role in PR practice 13
- An epidemic of lying 14
  - The ‘truth’ in public relations 14
  - Can you predict honesty? 16
  - One principle among several 18
- 03 Truth, trust and the virtue of being ‘good’ 22
- Truth and trust 22
  - The limits of organizational responsibility 23
  - To whom are you loyal? 24
  - The virtue of being ‘good’ 26
- 04 Whose rights are right? 29
- Rights and responsibilities 29
  - When my right conflicts with yours 31
  - Conflicting rights in public relations 31

05 The trouble with rules 33

- Rules rule our lives 33
- Those darn deontologists 34
- The real trouble with rules 35
- ‘Situations alter cases’ 35
- Moral relativism and situations 36
- The problem with situations 37

06 Utilitarianism: Right acts and wrong reasons 38

- What the heck is ‘utilitarianism’? 39
- Motives be damned 39
- Problems with Robin Hood 40

PART TWO Ethics and the practitioner 43

---

07 Utilitarianism: Cultivating respect and humility 45

- R-E-S-P-E-C-T 45
- Still the moral child 46
- The moral child grows up 47
- An ethical litmus test? 49
- More than good manners: ethics and etiquette 51
- Sexual harassment and respect 53
- Morality and your level of competence 54
- The virtue of humility 58

08 Codes of ethics: The good, the bad and the (almost) ugly 61

- Codes as contracts 62
- Minimum standards or ideals? 62
- Who needs codes, anyway? 62
- A global code? 63
- Relying on a personal code 64
- Using personal values 66
- Developing your own code 67

09 Conflicts of interest: Sex and other relationship issues 69

- Defining a conflict 69
- Sleeping with... the enemy? 70
- Practicalities before ethics 71

- Outside conflicts 72
- Personal relationships and ethical principles 73
- Other conflict situations 73

10 (Very) personal ethical decisions: Whistle-blowing and moonlighting 76

- A dilemma you don't need 76
- A continuum of tattling 77
- How to be a whistle-blower 78
- Tattling 79
- The temptations of moonlighting 79

PART THREE Strategies and dilemmas 83

---

11 Public relations ethics and traditional media 85

- Our relationship with journalists 86
- Media access and ethics 88
- Journalists have codes, too 88
- Aspects of ethical media relations 89
- Media transparency and PR ethics 90
- PR ethics and the disappearing gatekeepers 91

12 PR ethics and social media 93

- New media, new ethical dilemmas 93
- Inauthentic online communication 94
- Sponsored online material 96
- Social media and your internal public 98
- Ethics and 'native advertising' 99
- Guidance for ethical social media engagement 100

13 Persuasion, propaganda and advocacy: The ethics of influence 102

- Engineering consent 103
- Ethical persuasion... an oxymoron? 103
- PR for biker gangs? 104
- Any client, any time? 105
- The advocate arises 105
- The 'right' to PR counsel 106
- Sneaky propaganda 107
- A war of words 107
- The pitfalls of euphemism 108

Doublespeak	108
The 'controlled lexicon'	109
The vocabulary of public relations	110
Persuasion by lobby	111
Transparency versus obfuscation	112

14 Supporting 'good causes': Bad ethics or bad taste? 114

'Aware' of the issues	114
A staple of community relations	115
Seeking a good fit	116
From good causes to good taste	118

15 Deceptive authorship: Ghostwriting and plagiarism 121

A PR practice	121
The unseen author	122
Crossing the line?	123
Acceptable versus unacceptable uses	125

PART FOUR Organizations, ethics and public relations 129

---

16 Making decisions: The true reality of everyday ethics 131

Why make a decision at all?	132
The best you can hope for	132
Ethical dilemmas: not all the same	133
Decision steps	134
Making those ethical decisions in PR	137
A case in point	139
Other approaches	140
Criteria for second guessing	141
PR practitioners as ethical decision-makers	142
The researcher told us so	144

17 PR and the corporate ethics programme 147

Organizational ethics/Pr ethics: not the same thing	147
Ethics as window-dressing	148
Social responsibility defined	149
The case of the triple bottom line	150
Organizational ethics and PR	151

18 The future of ethical public relations: Education and leadership 155

Why we care about an ethical future 156

Back to the classroom 156

Developing future PR leaders 160

Drawing to a conclusion 160

Appendix 1: For your bookshelf 162

*Appendix 2: Chartered Institute of Public Relations Code of Conduct* 166*

Appendix 3: Guidelines for the ethics audit 169

Index 171